QUEASY POP KIDS now available for the Retail Market

Los Angeles, CA, April 6th 2007 – Three Lollies LLC has announced it will move forward with plans to make its Queasy Pop Kids product available to retailers beginning in April of 2007 in support of its popular Queasy Drops seasickness relief drops.

Queasy Pop Kids contain the same ingredients as Queasy Drops, but are packaged as a kid sized lollipop.

The idea behind Queasy Pop Kids is a simple one. “Kids don’t like the idea of medicine or cough drops but kids never turn down lollipops” says Three Lollies CEO Jim Pathman. “Sucking on a Queasy Pop Kids lollipop can help kids suffering from seasickness, car sickness or just a generally queasy stomach.”

He should know. Three Lollies has been providing Queasy Pop Kids to the National Children’s Cancer Society for years. The pops provide relief for kids undergoing chemotherapy treatments.

But today the makers of Queasy Pop Kids are going after a much sunnier market – helping kids to enjoy time on the water with family and friends.

About Queasy Drops and Queasy Pop Kids

Queasy Drops and Queasy Pop Kids are non-drowsy, drug free products designed to ease seasickness in as little as 10 minutes. Just suck on them like a cough drop (Queasy Drops) or a lollipop (Queasy Pop Kids).

About Three Lollies, LLC

Three Lollies has a full line of products used to ease nausea. Originally developed as Preggie Pops and Queasy Drops, our products have been used for seven years by cancer patients to relieve the nausea associated with chemotherapy and by pregnant women to relieve the nausea from morning sickness.

Previously available only through oncologists and obstetricians, our products are now available through Marine Retailers and Drug Stores for the treatment of seasickness.
